Bachelors and Pirates Win Curling Honors

This week the curling must be handed to two local rinks of curlers, the Bachelors and the Pirates, who worked their way into the prizes of the Gleichen Bouspiel held last week. Enthusiasm soared to high points when these two rinks of youthful curlers continued their winning ways over many veteran curlers. Both teams were sensational in their drive for the major awards but the Bachelors achieved a far sought goal when they went through to the finals in the Shogiprite event, losing out to Simpson of Bassano. The Pirates too, met defeat when they met the Bassano aggregation, but put up a game battle all the way. These two rinks were the only two Arrowwood quartettes to get into the prizes and they feel quite proud of their achievements against their elder and more experienced adversaries. The Personnel of the rinks are:

Bachelors—1 W. McKinley, 2 W. Wilson, 3 R. Lewendon, 4 H. McCullough, skip Pirates—1 J. Dunan, 2 R. Oliver, 3 O. Beagle, 4 O. Larsen, skip

New territory in the Canadian Rockies will be opened this year by the sky-line Trail Hike and Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, two societies whose members come from all over the world to enjoy these splendid recreations. On foot and on horseback, they set out from the Canadian Pacific Banff Springs Hotel to conquer the mountains—not just to climb them, but to capture their beauty with cameras, to erect friendly, cheerful camps on their heights, and to carry away from their wooded slopes health and pleasant recollections. The official Sky-Line Trail Hike, from the second of August to the fifth, will follow part of the trail taken through the Rockies in 1841 by Sir George Simpson, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company.

It is planned to motor from Banff Springs Hotel to the game warden's cabin on Healy Creek on August 2, hiking to the Canadian Pacific cabin, the Sunshine Camp, the first day. In the second day Simpson Pass will be crossed and the second camp made at one of the Beryl Lakes, near Mummy and Scarb Lake. The third night will be spent at Shadow Lake and the final Pioneer Camp will be at Castle Mountain Camp on the Banff-Windermere Road, after which horses will be available for those who wish to go to Banff. The whole distance will be about 35 miles.

The official five-day trip of the Trail Riders is from July 25 to 29 and this year takes in the Red Deer River, former famous hunting ground but now included in the Banff National Park, which limits all hunting to cameras. The trout fishing is excellent and ample time will be set aside for fishermen, while the others in the party will take pleasant side trips. The party will motor about 11 miles, from Banff to the crossing of the Cascade where horses will be waiting. The first camp, used for two nights, will be somewhere near Windy Camp. They then ride over Snow Creek Pass to Scotch Cabin on the Red Deer and turn west to the second camp. The trail will follow the Red Deer to its source, and turn south to Baker Lake and Purman Lake to a camp in the Purman Valley. The fifth day's ride is to the Sun Dance Lodge near Lake Louise Station, for the Pioneer.

Wedding Bells

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the Arrow Lodge Wednesday afternoon when Miss Ada Ziegler was united in marriage to Mr. Magnus Haugen. Both parties to the marriage were from Calgary and the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Brubaker. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Johnstone of Calgary. The bridal couple will reside in Calgary.

Presentation Made to Mrs. J. Weiland

A merry group of twenty young people gathered at the church on Tuesday evening and then went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Weiland for a birthday surprise party in honour of Mrs. Weiland. Several new games and contests were played, led by Grace Brubaker, which were enjoyed by all. Just before lunch Mrs. Weiland was presented with a lovely serving tray. Then all took part in the singing of old time songs.

The Film Flon News made the following remark in its first issue following Xmas: "It was noted that the holiday season produced its regular crop of black eyes, headaches, and miscellaneous minor items that tend to show the heathens what a civilized nation we really are."

"Steel of Empire," the recently published work by John Murray Gibbon, while really the story of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has so much of other Canadian history that it will find a permanent place in the minds of the first contributions to the records of the Dominion. Starting with the first known arrival on our shores, a Chinaman, Hui Shon, in British Columbia at the end of the fifth century, Mr. Gibbon traces the Canadian growth of the Pacific, many centuries later, with a vivid eye incident, and the author's long association with the railway having been of the utmost value.

Possessing one of the finest collections in the world of colored pictures of scenes in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, T. H. Lonsdale, of Banff, recently exhibited them to the Women's Canadian Club at an illustrated lecture at the Vancouver Hotel. The pictures included scenes of mountains, valleys, lakes, birds, and animals and flower life.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly in your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN".

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. It has stood the experience of millions of men who have proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Chemicals Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY LAWRENCE A. BEATING —

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company. Roger Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had hired Soak Torney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton's plan was concerned, was only a saw-fangled way to waste money.

The meeting took place at Buzz Hamilton's and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo sat behind and Helen asked Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angered Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz should be Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Torney, the foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is injured. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Torney and dresses his wound. Kilgo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is shot at from outside the house. Link kills Kilgo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years imprisonment for shooting Buzz Torney. Link goes home after the trial of Buzz was over. Link meets Soak Torney, who starts telling Fleming why he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Just as he was about to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney is shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around to find the killer, but he cannot find him. He comes across Jackpot Mell watering his horse, and tells him that if he had better leave the district.

He gave up the search. "I'm obliged about the bank. It's going to be worth a good deal more than you and Kilgo thought. Jackpot," he went on slowly, his brown eyes travelling over the man's light figure, "you could have killed Torney, and you wouldn't have turned a hair. You could have a huge bounty made him talk-like he did at the meeting. In fact, Soak told me so. Well," he ended, turning away. "I've got to go."

"Hold on."

Mell's shallow countenance wore its accustomed look of naïveté and derision, but there was a brittle edge to his tone. "Link, you ought to quit these parts. Runaway place—in town the law surprises you in all sorts of things."

"I see. Just a friendly tip, eh?"

"Shore! We always got on good terms here, but I'm not the kind to keep much to my friends. Seem like I can't remember who I heard talking."

"I've been lots of different places in my time. Found out it's mighty good sense to get elsewhere before trouble busts out."

"I never did own any baggage, Jackpot," was the drawled reply. "By the way, when you get to town, tell the sheriff there's a corpse here for him to see."

Mell shrugged, then strode to his horse and started. He did not seem so much as glance back, but urged his roan along the spring bend in the direction of the road. Link looked on and watched until the man disappeared toward Rawhide.

He searched another half hour for "trucks or some thing" for the identity of Soak's killer. There was none. Hearing hoof-beats, he stepped out of the trees onto a rocky clearing, and saw, and heard, and knew. He saw, and heard, and knew. He saw, and heard, and knew. He saw, and heard, and knew.

"Soak Torney. He and I were talking, and somebody shot him so heaven't found out yet who did it." "Bush dismissed. "Do you know why?"

"He nominated. 'Torney hasn't been since the meeting, you know. He stepped out of the trees and stopped. He started to go back to the irrigation scheme at the last minute. Soak was all for it before, but he said 'spread'. Bush should be Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Torney, the foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is injured. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Torney and dresses his wound. Kilgo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is shot at from outside the house. Link kills Kilgo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years imprisonment for shooting Buzz Torney. Link goes home after the trial of Buzz was over. Link meets Soak Torney, who starts telling Fleming why he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Just as he was about to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney is shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around to find the killer, but he cannot find him. He comes across Jackpot Mell watering his horse, and tells him that if he had better leave the district.

Amusement swept over the Star Loop's owner's face. He stared blankly at Stephen, then looked with puzzled uncertainty at Bush and Mulrooney. "You mean," he demanded at last, incredulously, "you think I killed Soak?"

"The other grunted. "We got word you did. Where's the kid now? Had plenty of time to get rid of it, of course."

"Spraggins nodded to this. The cattle agent and Mulrooney looked startled as they drew nearer. "Sheriff, if Mell told you I killed Torney, he lied."

Stephen jerked at his strangely glib mistake. "Oh, Jackpot's a smooth lay, all right. But I reckoned you say that. Self-defense, wasn't it?"

"I didn't shoot him at all. Soak stepped out of the trees as I rode along. He started to tell me who made him back down on the irrigation scheme at the meeting the other day. Before he got it out he was shot. I went after the fellow, but found Mell watering his horse at the spring. He claimed he didn't do it—and I couldn't take a ride on him anywhere around."

"Do you think I'd hang around here, waiting for you if I killed Soak?" "It was self-defense, I'd ride for you myself. If it was murder, I'd be miles away by now."

"Since fell. 'That's your story, eh? Ames reached at his hip pocket and drew out a pair of manacles. "First I'll take that weapon, Fleming. Your yarn sounds weak to me. Had plenty cause to want Soak dead, didn't you? So you could maybe talk ranchers into the water'n scheme? So long as he was around, the main authority on it, yuh couldn't make much headway. I'll have to take yuh in, Link."

Impulse assailed him to whip out his weapon and hold the sheriff at bay until he could find a swift escape. But he stifled this. It would brand him with the appearance of guilt. He was wholly innocent of the proper thing to do was to insist on that."

Stephen was stretching out his hands with the manacles when John Mulrooney uttered a dry chuckle and stepped closer. "Who says Link killed Torney, Sheriff?"

"Jackpot Mell. Claims he hadda git for dear life or he'd have got it too. Says he met Soak, who told him Link kept him prisoner, but he got away. Jackpot didn't know till Link shot that he followed 'em here."

"The cattlemen grunted and shook their heads. "Ever hear of Mell running from a gunfight?"

"Gussie Jackpot keeps too late hours," Mulrooney drawled. "Works on a man's brain like the tremors. Why this kidn' couldn't have happened that way, Ames—not without Marty and me knowin'. We been with Link the last hour."

"Well."

"The cattlemen grunted and shook their heads. "Ever hear of Mell running from a gunfight?"

"Gussie Jackpot keeps too late hours," Mulrooney drawled. "Works on a man's brain like the tremors. Why this kidn' couldn't have happened that way, Ames—not without Marty and me knowin'. We been with Link the last hour."

"Well."

"The cattlemen grunted and shook their heads. "Ever hear of Mell running from a gunfight?"

The lawman stiffened, uttering an exclamation. Even the unimpaired Spraggins blinked and slowly shifted his gaze to Bush.

"Been with him an hour?"

"Have we, Marty, or not?"

The cattle agent struck a match on his boot sole. "Of course."

Fortunately Stephen was not looking at Link at the moment, so that he had time to master the amazement that rippled over his forehead face. But when he glanced back his expression was calm, uninformative.

"Huh! You claim that too?"

"Might as well, Sheriff. It gets me out of a jam, doesn't it?"

A piercing look was the answer. "Come on, Ames, forget this. It was just a little joke on Mell's part. I reckon," Marty urged. "Why, Fleming isn't a killer! And like he said, it's unreasonable to stand that if he did shoot Torney, he would wait around an hour for you to come."

Stephen removed his hat and scratched his head. "All right," he decided with irritated reluctance. "You can go, Link. But dang it, I'm going to look into this plumb thorough! Willin' to swear you didn't have a ride along to-day?"

"And you don't know how Torney got killed?"

"Haven't any idea as to the killer or how he did it."

"H'm. I ain't satisfied, by a dumb sight. Might hear from me later."

"You mean," he tried to keep a straight face, "that you're trying to lay a trap of that fact from his face, Fleming sought his horse. A moment later he rode off with Bush and Mulrooney. When they were out of earshot he faced them."

"Well, what made you do it? Do you know who shot Soak from ambush?"

"Course not! But look here, Link: who did?"

"Haven't any idea, Marty. Don't even know why Jackpot should want suspicion on me. Why should he try to put away like Buzz, and maybe for a longer time?"

Honest John looked troubled. "You're too believin' in folks. Why, any dog with a sore foot can tell when it's hard walkin'. Guess you can't, though. Uh—Marty and I figured yuh ain't a killer, so we lied to Ames. Ain't sorry, neither. But."

"He hesitated."

"Speak up, John. Both of you have something on your minds. I want to hear plain English."

"They exchanged looks. "Yeah. You know that promise I made in merit," to go along with yuh on this irony?"

"Sure. Bush spoke up too. I'm glad you ain't scared of the plain talk, but I'm sure of these old-fashioned cow-prodders. Why, there never would be progress if every one—"

"Wait, will yuh?" Mulrooney shifted uncomfortably in his saddle and stared into the distance. "That's what I'm getting at. Yuh see, my old woman's been sick a long time. And I had trouble with my steers when that spring went if I pull out o' your scheme?"

"Me too—if you don't mind, Link. Bush and I, we're stuck."

"Silence. "I understand, boys," he said quietly. "You backed me in the meeting just for effect. For effect. For friendship's sake. Like you lied to Sheriff Stephen, because you didn't want to see me in trouble. That it?"

"You feel like the others, that irrigation is some crazy modern scheme for wasting money. I'm grateful for your backing," he said sincerely as he strove to conceal his disappointment. "I surely hope you'll be a good turn both times."

"Aw, Link, you oughtn't to go into this water scheme. Why, everybody thinks yuh're a plumb loco."

"They neared the fork in the road where Bush and Mulrooney would turn off. The sullen sky was going to deeper grey, yielding slowly to night. The wind had sharpened to a brittle keener and snow continued to fall in a steady, menacing swirl. The Star Loop owner stopped his horse."

"I believe in it, boys."

Buzz expelled tobacco juice. "Buzz doesn't, though. If Helen goes in with yuh like I hear yeh persuadin' her to, folk'll say yuh had Buzz put away so she could manage her spread."

Link looked sharply at the cattle agent. "Folks would gossip about amazin' if there was nothing better. That wouldn't concern me. We ain't go through with this thing. I'm set on it, sure it will work. They shook their heads. "There'll be opposition, Link. Like this Soak Torney affair. But that's about all other night. Was Kilgo out on a friendly call, or what?"

Eight Attendants Out of Original Ten Are Still Living

Although 42 years have passed since the King and Queen were married, Princess Victoria was only the second of Princess Mary of Teck's ten bridesmaids to pass away. To be sure, most of them were very young, some were children, at the time. But the exception of that young Victoria and her cousin, Princess Helen Victoria, all of them are married. The now only surviving sister of the bridegroom of that summer day—was also Princess Victoria's 25th birthday—in 1924. She is now 42 years old. The three Princesses of Edinburgh one married into Spain, one into Russia, one into Germany. Princess Margaret of Connaught, dead these fifteen years, became Crown Princess of Sweden. Princess Alice of Battenberg is ex-Queen of Spain. Princess Alice of Albany and Princess Patricia of Connaught married at one time, becoming Countesses of Athlone and Lady Patricia Hankey respectively.

Young Mothers Benefit from Two Generations' Proof of This External Treatment

HOCKEY NOTES

Cardinals 2—Mooseleigh 4

For the third consecutive time this winter Mooseleigh chalked up a victory in a scheduled league game at Mooseleigh last Thursday. The game proved to be a very close-checking affair, and the brand of hockey displayed was not very interesting to look at. The Cardinals played an indifferent type of hockey, only going through the motions, however, the locals can be excused as they were all weary from curling. Mooseleigh were full value for their win and on the evening's performance proved their superiority.

Mooseleigh 0—Cardinals 2

The local Arrowwood Cardinals came to life long enough Saturday night last to hand the league-leading Mooseleigh Club a 2-0 shutout before an enthusiastic crowd of home town fans. There was no score in the first period although both teams came close on several occasions. In the second period Hansen, in the Mooseleigh net, was completely fooled on a centre which was well aimed by "Pock" Beagle. "Casey" Norton, proved too tricky for Hansen again in the third period when he circled the Mooseleigh goal to slip the rubber disc into the netting before Hansen could save. The Cardinals dominated the play throughout the game with the defence proving invincible before stellar net minding of Sharpe.

Arrowwood — Sharpe; C. Beagle, N. Dumka, Dougal Oliver; C. Norton, E. Norton, E. Barrist, McCullough, B. Oliver, S. Beagle.

MILO NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Barch and son John returned from a three months visit at Eugene, Oregon. They report a splendid trip with flowers blooming in Oregon and spring just around the corner.

Miss Helen Northcott has gone to Grosfield for a month where she will visit with her brother and family.

A record crowd attended the Annual Social Credit meeting. Following a business meeting and election of officers for the coming year the evening was spent in entertainment. All report a splendid time with much praise for the ability of the local talent. One outstanding feature was a replica of Major Barch's Amateur Hour, under the directorship of Mrs. C. Jones.

We regret to report that Bruce Marsden is somewhat under the weather and look forward to his speedy recovery.

Mr. John Martin and party returned from a brief visit to the States. The trip was somewhat dampened through the prevalence of the mumps epidemic.

The Watt and Thornton families spent the week-end visiting in Calgary.

Mr. Laurance Phillips has been a victim of the flu for the past three weeks. Mr. Glen Palfrey, of Blackie, taking charge of the store in his absence.
